Subject: Collaboration with Japanese during World War II by Navy Lieut. LITTLE, USN.

Summary of Information:

During war crime testimony of Sgt. JOSEPH L. SZCZEPANSKI, ASN 6897719, 40 Lynn St., Larksville, Pennsylvania, this date, he related how, at Fukuoka POW Camp No. 17, Japan, a U. S. Naval Lieutenant by the name of LITTLE had collaborated with the enemy, thus costing the lives of two American soldiers and causing severe beatings to a number of other American soldiers in order to make his own position with the Japanese solid and luxurious. SZCZEPANSKI stated that he did not want his name mentioned in connection with Lt. LITTLE'S criminal deeds and that he did not want it to become part of his regular testimony on conditions at Fukuoka Camp No. 17. He stated that he believes that Lt. LITTLE was court-martialed by the U. S. Navy at Brooklyn, N. Y. and that he was sentenced to twenty years in prison for his treason-like actions during the war.

SZCZEPANSKI related how a pugilistic soldier from the 4th U. S. Marines, called "JIMMY THE GREEK" PAVLOCKAS, of either Detroit or Chicago, had never gotten along very well with Lt. LITTLE because of Lt. LITTLE'S being a "general bully" and considered no one's welfare except his own and that of the Japanese. In November, 1943, "JIMMY THE GREEK" was apprehended by Lt. LITTLE while trading his rice for cigarettes. He was in a group of soldiers doing the same thing, but Lt. LITTLE singled him out of the group, and rather than to take him before Major JOHN P. MAMEROW, U.S.A.A.F. (now of March Field, California), he took him to the Japanese Camp Commander who ordered PAVLOCKAS to a dungeon in 22 to 24 temperatures, clad in only pants and shirt and fed a half cup of rice and one cup of water per day. Thirty nine days later PAVLOCKAS died of hunger and exposure.

SZCZEPANSKI related how an American soldier, NOAH C. HURD, had stolen food from the Red Cross Warehouse due to the fact that the Japanese did not distribute it anyway. He was apprehended by LITTLE about June, 1944 and subsequently taken to the Japanese Camp Commander, KEN YURI, who personally tried HURD and personally beheaded him with a Sumarai Sword in the presence of a Lt. PERKINS, a Lt. CHRISTY, and a Lt. ROMAINE of the U. S. Army. LITTLE was also responsible for the beating to death of a U. S. Army Corporal KNIGHT following his stealing rice. He was beaten to death in a Jap guard house by guards and by the then Camp Commander of Fukuoka No. 17, Captain ISAO FUKIHARA.

LITTLE also threatened death to Corporal SAMUEL SHULMAN, AAF, of New York City when he took offense at remarks made by LITTLE on one occasion.

LITTLE was also responsible for the starving of an American soldier by the name of MONTOYA, believed to be from New Mexico, when he had received a stolen jacket from someone.

LITTLE had also reputedly told the Japanese that a half bowl of rice was sufficient for the American soldiers when U. S. Army Major JOHN P. MAMEROW had attempted to have the Japanese increase the rations instead of to lessen them. LITTLE ALSO took the initiative to prohibit smoking in the mess hall by U. S. Army personnel.

It is believed that LITTLE is a native of California and that his wife is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Corporal JACK KUCHNER, of the Bronx, N. Y. C., can corroborate this aforementioned report together with the aforementioned U. S. Army officers and non-commissioned officers listed herein. Capt. HOWARD HEWLETT, U.S. Army Medical Corps, can also corroborate this testimony.

at Fukukawa Area PW Camp No. 17.

Perpetuation of the testimony of JOSEPH LEON SOLOZPANSKI, Sergeant,
ASN 6897719.

Taken at : 40 Lynn Street, Larkeville, Pennsylvania.
Date : 1 April 1947

In the presence of : Don H. Berntson, Special Agent, S.I.C.

Questions by : Don H. Berntson, Special Agent, S.I.C.

Q. State your name, grade, serial number, and permanent home address.

A. JOSEPH LEON SOLOZPANSKI, Sergeant, ASN 6897719, 388 East Ridge Street, Nanticoke, Pennsylvania.

Q. At what organization were you a member?

A. HQ. and Sq. Sqdn., 20th AB Group, Nichols Field, P. I.

Q. State the date and place of your birth.

A. 20 August 1916, Plymouth, Pennsylvania.

Q. Are you married?

A. Yes.

Q. Please state your civilian occupation.

A. I have served in the U. S. Army for a period of 10 years prior to which I was attending Nanticoke High School, Nanticoke, Pennsylvania. After school hours I would work for the Liberty Throwing Milk Company at Nanticoke, Pennsylvania.

Q. What education have you had as a background?

A. I graduated from Nanticoke High School, Nanticoke, Pa. on 16 June 1936.

Q. When did you return from overseas?

A. I arrived at Madigan General Hospital, Tacoma, Washington on 11 October 1945.

Q. On what date did you become a prisoner of war or the Japanese?

A. 10 April 1942 I was taken prisoner at Bataan.

Q. On what date and actually where were you released from a POW camp?

A. 12 September 1945 we released ourselves from Fukukawa Camp No. 17, ^{17th} Ward, near American forces at Xanoya. We met the 11th Airborne at that place.

Q. Where were you taken after leaving Batasan in the custody of the Japanese?

A. Following the "Death March" we were taken to Camp Cabanatuan No. 1. I stayed at Camp Cabanatuan from 22 April 1942 until 25 July 1945.

Q. How did the Japanese treat you at Camp Cabanatuan?

A. For the first four months we were fed nothing but a very small quantity of boiled soup and rice for the three meals each day. We worked from 0700 hours until 1700 hours each day, six days a week, on road construction and miscellaneous construction. From September, 1942 until July, 1943 we lived incomparative luxury, although treatment was still brutal for the slightest offense. I personally saw five American soldiers shot to death for bribing the guard and leaving the camp for procuring food from a nearby Filipino village (Cebu, P.I.). These five soldiers' names were: JAMES, THOMAS, CASTRO, MESEEK, and I cannot recall the fifth name.

These soldiers were given the choice of standing for three days, tied to a post, neck-high, with their heads resting back on the posts in the face of the tropical sun. One of the boys made a break to escape, and all of the boys were forced to dig their own graves and were shot down in the graves while they were singing "God Bless America". The alternative of being bound to the posts for three days was to accept shooting, but when, on the third day, the one boy attempted to escape all five were shot to death. I cannot recall any of the names of the Japanese responsible for this atrocity, and I cannot recall the name of the Camp Commander at that time. I would not even attempt to describe either the Camp Commander or the other Japanese involved. However, that incident occurred on 25 June 1942. I saw an American soldier (Mexican) by the name of TULLIA shot to death there after digging his own grave in approximately February, 1943.

He had suffered from dysentery and had gone to a latrine, near the fence, to relieve himself when he was apprehended by Japanese Guards and subsequently put to death. Approximately February, 1943 an American soldier by the name of [REDACTED] was apprehended as he returned from nearby Cabuncan with a barracks bag full of food. He was shot to death on the same night as he was re-entering the camp. [REDACTED] approximately February, 1943 a Colonel BRIDGES (?), a Navy Lieutenant, and an Army Captain attempted to escape from camp one evening, and they were apprehended following which they were deprived of any clothing and were compelled to stand out in the cold weather during which time they were whipped, stoned, and spat upon by Japanese soldiers. This lasted for about three days following which the officers became delirious and were marched down the road and shot to death. [REDACTED]

Q. Can you give the time or the day that the above executions occurred?

A. The five American soldiers mentioned above were executed about 1800 or 1900 hours. TULLIA was executed about 1500 hours, [REDACTED] was executed about 2100 hours, and the three officers were executed about 1000 hours.

Q. Can you describe any of the Japanese responsible for the above atrocities?

A. No, and I cannot recall any names.

Q. Were you ever confined to Pulicola Area POW Camp No. 12 in Japan?

A. No, I was confined to Pulicola Area POW Camp No. 17 immediately after I left Camp Cabanatuan, P.I. I left Camp Cabanatuan on 23 July 1943 and arrived at Pulicola Camp No. 17 on 11 August 1943. At that camp we were detailed to work in the MINTUJ COAL MINES at GINZA, near Omuta, Japan.

Q. Can you describe the atrocities and general mistreatment of the American soldiers at Pulicola No. 17?

- A. The general discipline and treatment was extremely rigid. They awoke at 0530 Hours each morning, marched us one mile to the mines where we started work precisely at 0600 Hours and worked until 1330 Hours 21x days a week. This schedule prevailed from August, 1943 until March, 1944 at which time until 11 August, 1943 they worked us for fifteen and sixteen days straight before granting us a free day. On the free day we had cleaning of the barracks and inspections. The food was inadequate for a man to remain healthy and still undergo the hard work in the coal mines. Men were beaten for not saluting the Guards, for being outside of the barracks after 2000 Hours, and we were beaten severely for trading soup for rice or vice versa. For a good period of time, about eight months, our boys were beaten on the average of every other day for various reasons. When the camp first opened, approximately November, 1943, "JIMMY THE CAT" NAKAMURA, of Detroit of Chicago, a corporal in the U. S. 4th Marines, was apprehended for trading his rice for cigarettes. He was subsequently confined to a dungeon where he was forced, in mid-winter, temperature 22 to 24°, to remain without blankets and wearing only a shirt and a pair of trousers. He was given only a half cup of rice each day together with one cup of water. Thirty nine days later, about 10 January 1944, "JIMMY THE CAT", died of exposure and hunger. An American soldier, ROAN C. HUND, stole ~~and~~ ^{cross} food from the warehouse because the Japanese would not give it to us anyway. The stealing occurred about June, 1944. A Lt. KEN YODI (Japanese Commander of Camp No. 17) gave HUND a personal trial and beheaded the soldier with a Samurai sword within one hour. He beheaded the soldier himself about 0530 Hours, approximately June, 1944. I did not see the actual execution, but the Japanese ordered U. S. Army officers Lt. REEDMAN, Lt. CHILDRY, and Lt. ROMAINE, to witness the execution.
- B. Army Corporal SHIMONI was beaten to death in the guard house for stealing rice. He was beaten to death by guards and also by the Camp Commander who was then Captain TAO FUJIWARA. The beatings were administered by belt buckle and fists. This incident occurred, about say, 1943 at Camp No. 17. Corporal HANNAH HAYE, of the 4th Marines, was in charge of a detail of men working in the camp, and as he gave the Americans a "break" when it was raining, Captain TAO FUJIWARA approach and asked why the men were not working to which HAYE replied that it was raining. FUJIWARA then admonished HAYE and confined him to the guard house for a period of two days during which time HAYE underwent severe beatings and had his eye knocked out by FUJIWARA's belt buckle. This occurred about March, 1945. A guard at Camp No. 17, a Japanese soldier nicknamed "The Sailor" by us, was responsible for most of those terrific beatings. I would describe "The Sailor" to be about 38 years of age; height, 5'8"; weight, 175 lbs.; rugged black beard even after he shaved; straight nose (high); rounding face; he did not have typical Japanese features; was in the habit of wearing sun glasses; hair, black and straight; eyes were more rounded than slanted; stocky-well built. "The Sailor" was stationed at that camp for practically the entire two years. A coal-miner, Jap civilian, about 5'1" in height, weight, 130 lbs; no glasses; hair, black, somewhat tangled; he looked like a wolf with his wide forehead and long pointed nose with wide mouth and buck teeth; by the name of MURAKAWA worked with us in the mines. He beat us at the slightest provocation, and frequently he would swing at American soldiers in another squad as they passed by him. This man, MURAKAWA, had a friend in the same mine by the name of SHIVAKA-MAN. SHIVAKA-MAN was about 35 years of age; height, 5'7"; weight, 170 lbs.; smooth features; oval-shaped face; straight nose; hair, black, eyes, more rounding than oblique. This man worked our men harder than the other miners, and frequently he worked them into the dirt. Both FUJIWARA and SHIVAKA-MAN beat American soldiers into unconsciousness frequently. I would say that each of the two men had one severe beating to his credit on the average of once each week. KUMIMITSU YAMADA reported me for not working hard enough. He and two Guards beat me with their fists into unconsciousness, revived, revived me with water, and knocked me out a second time. They knocked me out a total of five teeth in the beating. They gave me the alternative of being shot or accepting the beating.

- Q. How old is MURAKAWA?
A. About 45 years of age.
- Q. Can you provide me with any further information concerning the aforementioned atrocities or mistreatment?
A. No, there were too many beatings for me to even start quoting names of our American soldiers, and few of them I can recall. Neither can I recall any further Japanese names.
- Q. Have you anything more to relate?
A. No.
