He was unable to take nourishment or medication by mouth. ~~Therefore~~ Therefore 0.2gm. Atabrine was given intra-muscularly at 1900. A transfusion of 300cc whole blood was started at 2000 and followed by 1,000cc of 10% glucose and 4% sodium bicarbonate in normal saline intravenously. While the last 50cc were being administered he started to have a chill and therefore the intravenous was discontinued(2110). The chill lasted for an hour and was accompanied by rapid pulse and respiration (T-100 P-126 R-38). Symptoms were controlled by morphine grains ½ and administration of heat. He required MS gr 1/8 at 0145 for restlessness.

He became restless again at 0300, 11-22-42 (T-101.6 P-150 R-50). He passed 500cc of reddish-brown urine and vomited a small amount of watery, greenish material. Symptoms were again relieved by MS gr-¼.

There was gradual relaxation of the vascular system thereafter:

(0430) T-101.8 P-130 R-29 BP-115/45

Another injection of 0.2gm of Atabrine di-hydrochloride was given intra-muscularly(0500).

(0530) T-100.8 P-130 R-30 BP-100/45

The radial pulse was imperceptible and therefore carotid was used.

(0800) T-99.8 P-126 R-32 BP-88/40

Blood count and cross-matching was carried out for transfusion: RBC-700,000 Hb-30 to 35% WBC-13,500 Juv-2 Bands-20 Segs-52 Lymph-24 Monos-2. A transfusion of 300cc of whole, citrated blood was started at 0830 and followed by 200cc of 10% glucose in normal saline intravenously. There was no reaction and he felt much better. During the day he took egg nogg in good amount and water frequently. He had no nausea and retained what he drank. The radial pulse was ~~of~~ poor qu ality. A hypodermic of 7.5gr caffeine sodium benzoate was given.

(1100) T-101 P-126 R-30 BP-104/60

(1430) T-99.2 P-126 R-24 BP- 94/44

An intravenous of 500cc 10% glucose in normal saline was given.

(1600) T-99.2 P-112 R-40

(1700) T-100.2 P-110 R-50

He became restless at 1700. He took ~~any~~ nourishment at 1730. Respirations gradually became more rapid and shallow. He lost consciousness at 1830. Respirations stopped at 1855. His pulse did not stop at the apex until 1907. His bowels did not move after admission and ~~any~~ no urine was voided after 0300, 11-22-42.

Pronounced dead at 1855 (11-22-42)

Diagnosis- Malignant tertian malaria (black-water fever).

Autopsy report- Sweeney, Max Eahen CWT, USN (FR)

The body was that of a fairly well nourished white male, age forty-three years, estimated weight 145 pounds, height about 69 inches. The skin was of a lemon yellow color. The sclerae were icteric. Pupils dilated. Buccal mucous membranes were pale. There was no edema or any sign of skin lesions. ~~The head~~

The body was opened by a Y-shaped ventral incision. There was considerable subcutaneous abdominal fat, very yellow in color-resembling chicken fat. The pleural and abdominal cavities showed no abnormalities nor any increase in fluid.

Lungs- there was slight scarringat the left apex with a few fine fibr rous adhesions to the parietal pleura. Both lungs were well aerated. There was mild hypostatic congestion at the base of both lungs.

Heart-
The heart was acutely dilated, involving largely the right side, the right auricle and ventricle being considerably dilated, and the walls thin. The musculature of the left chambers was of normal thickness. All valves were normal. The coronary arteries were firm with occasional thickened area in the intima. The musculature throughout was flabby and of a dull brownish color. The pericardial sac showed no increase in fluid. Pericardium was normal. The aorta and great vessels were normal throughout.

Liver- The liver was greatly enlarge weighing 2180 grams. The surface was grossly nodular, resembling a cirrhosis. The cut surface showed areas of nodular hypertrophy and scarring throughout. The general color was yellow with multiple pin point areas of vascular congestion. The capsule glistened throughout. The gall-bladder was distended with thick dark green bile, the bile ducts were patent.

Spleen- T
The spleen was enlarged, weight 930 grams. The capsule was smooth and the pulp soft but not mushy. The cut surface was dark red in color and the malpighian bodies were prominent.

Pancreas- It was smooth and almost white in color. Weight 40 grams.

Kidneys-
Large, combined weight 480 grams. They were of a reddish brown color and showed multiple pin point areas of what appeared to be hemorrhages. The capsule stripped with ease leaving a smooth surface. The cortex was slightly narrowed and some evidence of old scarring was noted. The ureters were normal.

Adrenals- Both were slightly below average in size. The cut surface was a dull brown. The medulla appeared congested.

18

Sll: a.g. fava

Bladder- filled with about 400cc of port-wine-colored urine. The mucous membrane was normal.

G.I. Tract- Stomach greatly distended and contained greenish, watery fluid. The intestines appeared normal throughout.

The blood was thin and watery, and the serum a deep red color.

Smears from the rib marrow showed evidence of anly slight erythrocyte regeneration,. Only a few young erythrocytic cells could be found. the leukocytes appeared normal.

Smears from the spleen failed to reveal any malarial parasites. Considerable pigment and granular debris were present in the macrophages.

THE BILIBID HOSPITAL
FOR MILITARY PRISON CAMPS OF P.I.

December 17, 1944.

On the above date, while a working party was clearing a formerly occupied patient's ward, a packet of papers, containing mere name and rank rosters of personnel arriving and leaving from the Japanese Work Detail at Palawan,was found by one of the owrking party. These papers, of no importance, were destroyed by burning.

Among these papers however, there were several statements as to deaths of personnel stationed at Palawan. Below listed is all the information that was shown on said papers:

FLYNN, Burton J. - killed on airfield on September 1, 1943.

BURSON, Alton Conrad - Pvt., U.S.Army; died due to truck accident on December 10, 1943.

MC KEE - Died January 1, 1944.
